

Methodist Church Founded 180 Years Ago

The Methodist Church in America is celebrating its 180th anniversary in 1960. The church was founded in 1800 by John Wesley, an English Methodist minister, who came to America in 1793. He was the first Methodist minister in America, and he founded the first Methodist church in America in 1800. The church has since grown to become one of the largest and most influential religious organizations in the United States. It has a long history of social and political involvement, and it has played a significant role in the development of the American nation. The church's commitment to social justice and equality has been a central part of its identity throughout its history. In 1960, the church is celebrating a milestone that marks its enduring presence in the American landscape.

The church's growth in America has been remarkable. It has spread across the country, from the East Coast to the West Coast, and it has become a part of the fabric of American society. The church's commitment to social justice and equality has been a central part of its identity throughout its history. In 1960, the church is celebrating a milestone that marks its enduring presence in the American landscape. The church's growth in America has been remarkable. It has spread across the country, from the East Coast to the West Coast, and it has become a part of the fabric of American society. The church's commitment to social justice and equality has been a central part of its identity throughout its history. In 1960, the church is celebrating a milestone that marks its enduring presence in the American landscape.

America's Greatest Heritage !

—the Freedom to Worship According to the Dictates of One's Own Conscience.

